

APPENDIX 1

INDICATIVE LIST OF SOURCES FOR LAW LIBRARIES

PURPOSE

This list provides guidance on the specific materials referred to in Standards 4.2 applying to service or subsidiary provision and Standard 4.3 applying to qualifying degree teaching or postgraduate course provision. Whilst Standard 4.4 applies to vocational course provision in England, Wales and Scotland, the relevant validation bodies are responsible for issuing detailed recommendations or guidance on library provision for their respective courses.

This list is designed as an aid to the selection of major items of law library stock (primary materials, journals, encyclopedias and other serials, electronic databases) both for general reference, and in relation to the courses most commonly taught in United Kingdom Law Schools. Textbooks and monographs are not included since specifying particular titles could be interpreted as attempting to over-ride academic freedom to select an individual approach to learning law.

The list is not intended for use as a tool to appraise the stock of a law library in support of validation or accreditation exercises.

STRUCTURE & CONTENT

The list gives the titles of texts and materials arranged under subject categories. The titles of the subject categories were derived from the responses of Heads of Law Schools in the research survey conducted in the summer of 1994 on the courses offered on their LLB (see section 4.6 of the research report). Some subjects do not have individual entries but are grouped (e.g. commercial / company law, constitutional / administrative law). These groupings echo the general trend of names given to courses provided by Heads. A few additional headings have been included in the list. Under these, details are given of materials from overseas jurisdictions not specified in the research survey, but to which students may require access when placing United Kingdom law in an international context.

The list is in two parts.

Section A lists general sources relating to the countries of the United Kingdom jurisdiction. Libraries would be expected to hold or have access to materials relevant only to the particular jurisdictions taught in that institution. The three countries are presented in order of size. For convenience, United Kingdom materials have been placed under England and Wales.

Section B lists sources in alphabetical order by subject. The list does not include standard practitioner works primarily used for vocational course teaching.

Dates in brackets indicate:

for legislation and law reports - the period covered for law journals and monographs - the period over which published.

Key materials (regardless of format) are indicated by an asterisk * against the title.

PAPER VERSUS ELECTRONIC

Law materials are now available in a wide range of different formats (paper, web, CD-ROM, microform) through a very wide range of conventional and electronic publishers. In view of the frequent changes in ownership and licensing of products within the law publishing sector, the list mentions only the title of a particular publication, without details of the format or database in which it is available. In this way it is hoped that the list will retain accuracy and authority for longer than in the past. In only a few selected instances is a particular format for a title specified.

The choice of the format in which legal materials are provided in universities and colleges is left to individual law schools and law libraries to decide, in the light of local circumstances (see Statement of Standards for University Law Library Provision in the United Kingdom, Standard 4.6).

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The SLS Libraries Sub-Committee gratefully acknowledges the assistance provided by John Knowles, Senior Subject Librarian (Social Sciences, Education & Law), Queen's University Belfast and David Hart, Reader Services Librarian, University of Dundee, in the revision of the sections on Northern Ireland and Scotland respectively.

A GENERAL SOURCES

The Internet

- There are legal materials freely available on the Internet. These materials are of variable quality and authenticity and care should be taken in using them. Generally, references to specific Internet sources are restricted to official and semi-official web sites. Most law libraries make available locally a web guide with links to relevant selected materials and / or provide links to various gateway services which select, list and, in some cases, evaluate legal materials on the Internet. Such gateway services include:
- Lawlinks at <<http://www.kent.ac.uk/lawlinks/>> an annotated list of web sites maintained by staff of the Templeman Library at the University of Kent at Canterbury;
- Legal Resources in the UK and Ireland at <<http://www.venables.co.uk/>> maintained by Delia Venables;
- Intute: social sciences at <<http://www.intute.ac.uk/socialsciences/law/>> whose legal content is edited by the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies and the University of Bristol Law Library;
- Eagle-i at <<http://ials.sas.ac.uk/eaglei/eagle-i.htm>> maintained by Steve Whittle at the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies.

Access to legal information on the Internet involves the provision of infrastructure and the Statement of Standards for University Law Library Provision in the United Kingdom makes reference to the provision of workstations (Standard 3.3), assistance (Standard 2.4), tuition & training (Standard 2.7) and technical support (Standard 2.8).
