EST 1892 LSBU School of Law and Education

London South Bank University School of Law & Education in association with LSBU Student Law Society and South London Law Society
presents

The Max Weaver lecture
"Does my Bot have rights?"
and other curious questions about AI and Human Organoids

Monday 1 December 2025

5:00 pm to 7:00 pm

Keyworth Centre Event Theatre, Keyworth Street, London SE1

Join our LSBU community to celebrate the outstanding contribution of Max Weaver to the teaching and learning of law at London South Bank University. Max was instrumental in establishing the study of law at LSBU (then Southbank Polytechnic) in 1972.

Over the years, his research and teaching has touched the lives of many.

Featuring our guest keynote speaker Dr Joshua Jowitt

Josh is a legal theorist whose research forms part of the contemporary secular natural law tradition. His work considers the problem of how the interests of nonhuman entities are protected in law. His discussion will consider the legal status of human organoids and how such issues might relate to AI.

refreshments will then be available as you find time to meet up with friends or make some new ones

This event is free

To attend please register on this link